Stoughton Utilities Celebrates 120 Years of Public Power Service

Community-owned Stoughton Utilities is celebrating a significant milestone anniversary in 2011, providing dependable public power to citizens and businesses in Stoughton for 120 years.

Stoughton Utilities began delivering reliable electric power to Stoughton in 1891 and has grown through the years. Today, Stoughton Utilities provides dedicated service to more than 8,300 homes and businesses in Stoughton. Stoughton Utilities operates as the locally-owned utility meeting local electric, water, and wastewater needs in Stoughton.

“While Stoughton Utilities has changed significantly over the years, our mission remains the same: to provide our community with reliable power and excellent service,” said Robert Kardasz, Stoughton Utilities Director. “As your community-owned utility, we’re dedicated to making Stoughton a better place to live and work.”

In 2003, Stoughton joined WPPI Energy, Wisconsin’s first municipal electric power supply company. Established in 1980, Sun Prairie-based WPPI Energy is a regional power company serving 51 customer-owned electric utilities, including Stoughton Utilities. Through WPPI Energy, these public power utilities share resources and own generation facilities to provide reliable, affordable electricity to more than 195,000 homes and businesses in Wisconsin, Upper Michigan and Iowa.

Stoughton Utilities is kicking off a celebration of its anniversary and invites customers to formally celebrate its milestone anniversary at a Public Power Walk to be held June 23 from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m. on the Yahara River Trail. The event will start at the Amundson Parkway entrance, and will feature promotions, giveaways, and refreshments. Participants can also enter to win an ENERGY STAR rated 40" LCD television.
